Charles Ebbetts, Baseball Magnate, Is Dead Today

President of Brooklyn National League Club and Senior Member of League Died Today—Active Figure in Baseball for 43 Years.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 18.—Charles H. Ebbetts, president of the Brooklyn National League Baseball Club, died today of heart disease in his suite at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel. The end evidently came as Mr. Ebbetts was sleeping. He was dead when his nurse visited his room at 6:10 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Ebbetts had been a sufferer from heart disease, complicated by asthma, for some time.

His condition was not believed serious a few weeks ago.

Ebbetts's health had not been of the best for the past year. His condition made it imperative that he go south during the winter. He spent the winter in Clearwater, Florida, training camp of his ball club, where he maintained a winter home.

He was so ill at Clearwater that he was forced to give up golf, his favorite pastime outside of his love for baseball.

He had not been active in a business way in the last year. He made only one appearance at a baseball meeting during the winter, in December when he attended the annual meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball Clubs at Hartford, Conn.

Ebbetts fell into a deep slumber about 11 o'clock last night. No one was with him at the time of his death. A nurse who entered the sick room shortly after 6 o'clock this morning found Ebbetts dead and summoned members of his family.

Ebbetts had been an active figure in baseball for 43 years. He began his baseball career as secretary and then for 27 years was president of the Brooklyn club.

His career, highly colorful and spectacular, covered the whole scope of baseball development from the stage of an afternoon pastime to one of the country's greatest institutions. He became associated with the Brooklyn Club in 1883, having accepted the position of secretary to Charles Byrne. Ebbetts was, at the time of his death, the senior member of the National League.

Always aggressive, Ebbetts was a very prominent figure.

His fiery characteristics and progressive idea did not always find favor with his colleagues, and he became entangled in numerous controversies. His honesty and sincerity of purpose, however, always got him a respectful hearing. Many of the laws and rules of the game were due directly and indirectly to his persistence.

Financial independence did not come to the "squire" until late in life—after the erection of Ebbetts field in 1913, and his friends pointed to it as the crowning achievement of Ebbetts career. He had built his stadium at a time when baseball interest in Brooklyn was at a low ebb.

In 1898, Ebbetts succeeded Byrne as president of the Brooklyn club, Byrne having died. It was at a trying period when finances were low and the teams representing Brooklyn were uniformly unsuccessful. It was so necessary to economize that Ebbetts personally managed the field work of the team for a part of 1898.

The turning point for the better came with the appointment of Wilbert Robinson as manager in 1914. New capital was brought in through the affiliation of the McKeever brothers, Stephen W. and Edward J. In 1916 Robinson produced a pennant winner. This freed the club from financial worry and since then, together with Sunday baseball and another pennant, Ebbetts and his partners accumulated a fortune.

FUNERAL TODAY OF WORLD FAMOUS PAINTER

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, April 18.—Quiet funeral services attended only by relatives and intimate friends were held today in Chapel Ardent for John Singer Sargent, world famous painter. Two wreaths lay on the dull metal coffin, one from his sister, and one from the Royal Academy, of which he was a member.

With friends attending the body, it was taken aboard a special train to Brookwood cemetery at Woking, for burial. Services were conducted at the grave by the Rev. H. T. Barrows, chaplain of the cemetery.

Besides his unmarried sister, another sister, Mrs. Francis Ormond and a number of the famous artist's friends from the London art colony were the chief mourners.

Our Growing Population.

The following births have been reported to the board of health:

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Sanglyn, 12 Peckbcrcide street, a son John.

Governor Vetoes Executive Budget

Will Resume Battle Next Year For His Constitutional Executive Budget—Great Confusion and Irresponsibility, He Asserts.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, April 18.—"It is a fraud."

In these words, and a few more, Governor Smith announced today he had vetoed the Republican executive budget bill. At the same time the governor said he was sure the time was coming when the Republicans would accept his proposed constitutional executive budget.

The governor said today he would resume his battle with the Republicans again next year for his kind of an executive budget.

"I imagine that fight will be quite interesting," the governor said, smiling.

In his veto memorandum on the budget bill, the governor took occasion to declare that in all his years in state government he had never seen greater confusion and more irresponsibility in budget making than at the last session of the Legislature. He added:

"The appropriation measures were so confused that it was only by the hardest kind of work that it was possible to show the public what had to be done in order to make tax reduction possible. No such confusion would be possible under the constitutional executive budget. Responsibility would be fixed and the press and the people would know from day to day during the legislative session what to expect in the way of appropriations and of tax rates, and could thus make their wishes known."

The Republican budget bill was sponsored by Senator Hewitt and Assemblyman Hutchinson, chairman of the finance committees of both houses. The Republicans claimed it followed the Dawes budget plan now in use in Washington. Regarding this the governor said of the Republican measure:

"I has been dressed up to look like the executive budget system in Washington. As a matter of fact it does not provide the federal system for the state, and if it did it would not serve our purpose because the conditions surrounding state and federal budget making are totally different.

"Aside from creating an additional $20,000 in patronage, the proposed budget bill is about as useful to the state as an extra tail would be to a white bull dog."

What is needed in this state is a constitutional provision that the governor shall not only originate the budget but that he shall present and defend it in the Legislature and that no new items shall be dragged into the budget by the Legislature."

5 Per Cent Jump In Food Prices

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 18—Retail food prices jumped five per cent during the last year, from March 15, 1924, to March 15, 1925, although there was a decrease of three-tenths of one per cent during March as compared with February, the department of labor announced today. For the 12 year period food prices increased 56 per cent.

CRASH OF FERRYBOATS IN FOG OFF BATTERY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 18.—The lives of 1,000 passengers on the Municipal ferryboat Queens were endangered today when the vessel crashed into the Bronx, her sister ship, which was tied up at slip number one off the Battery. Owing to the dense pall of fog which settled over New York and vicinity, Captain McCafferty of the Queens did not see the Bronx and was attempting to pilot his vessel into the slip.

Although the Queens was so badly smashed she was put out of commission, no passengers were injured. They rushed astern to safety when the Bronx loomed out of the fog.

An investigation to fix blame for the accident was ordered by William W. Mills, commissioner of the department of plants and structures.

FINAL SETTLEMENT OF TOWN COLLECTORS

Town collectors of the twenty townty towns of Ulster county have made their final settlement with the county treasurer as the law provides. Unpaid taxes in towns must be made now to the county treasurer before June 1 as on that date he must report to the state comptroller a list of unpaid taxes.

Taken to Dannemora.

Deputy Sheriff Robert B. Every left Friday evening for Dannemora with Captain Brown, who was sentenced in county court to serve a term of from one year to two years for assault in the second degree. As Brown has been four months in jail he will receive a deduction of that time from his sentence at Clinton prison.

A Sewing Meeting.

The Henrietta Wyckoff Guild of the First Reformed Church will hold a sewing meeting Monday afternoon, April 20 at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. W. B. Delaplane, 248 Albany avenue.

Boy Stepped In Front of Car

Testimony in Inquest Into Fatal Accident at South End of Rondout Creek Bridge, Given Before Coroner Conner.

An inquest was held Friday afternoon, at the court house before Coroner Conner to inquire into the death of Alexander Schwartz, six years old, who was killed on Wednesday afternoon at the Port Ewen entrance to the Rondout Creek Bridge when an automobile driven by Frank Filsinger collided with him. Chris J. Flanagan appeared for the district attorney's office and conducted the examination.

Several witnesses were sworn, including the women who were with the child at the time and Deputy Sheriff Seth Jocelyn, who visited the scene shortly after the accident and talked with the driver of the car. No one saw the child actually struck by the car. The women folks who were with the child were in the act of crossing the road from their left hand or east side of the road to the west side when they noticed the Buick car driven by Filsinger approach at what they term a high rate of speed. They had arrived at the Port Ewen end of the bridge and with the two baby carriages had turned to cross the road. Alexander, who had been with his mother, ran from her to the opposite side of the road. Where the car was at that time none of the women is sure. As the child reached the opposite side of the road they saw the car coming. They stopped and at that time the child was across the road well off to the side of the road. They did not see what he did as the car approached and after the car had passed they noticed he had disappeared. From that time on they are not entirely clear what happened for they became excited and began screaming. Two of the witnesses said they saw the lad's hat fly from the car first when the car had gone up the road some distance and then the boy's body dropped from under the car. The women claim the Buick car continued on at a fast clip and disappeared over the hill out of their sight.

The driver of the car claims that he stopped "as soon as he could" and that he stopped his car at the junction of the South Rondout road and there turned around, it being the first opportunity he had to turn. He drove his car back to the scene of the accident where the boy lay on the road and was about to pick him up when another car came along and picked up the boy and took him to the hospital. Filsinger followed the car to the city hall where he reported the accident.

Seth Jocelyn, who visited the spot immediately after the accident and made measurements, testified that from the end of the bridge to the spot where the blood was on the pavement it was a distance of 74 feet. The marks which were pointed out as marks made by the baby carriages of the women were 14 feet from the end of the bridge. The women testified that the boy was about opposite them when they last saw him.

After several witnesses were sworn and their testimony taken an adjournment was taken. No testimony on the part of any of the occupants of the car was taken on Friday. Frank Filsinger was present in court.

The first witness called was Dr. F. A. Johnston, who made an examination of the boy at the Kingston City Hospital where he was taken after the accident. He examined the body and found a fracture at the base of the skull which he said was the cause of death. There were other fractures of the leg and lacerations on the face and body.

Evelyn Goldman, one of the party with the boy, was next called. She said there were four women in the party. Alexander Schwartz and two other children in carriages. They left Broadway and Abeel street and proceeded up Abeel street to the bridge. At the entrance to the bridge they stopped while one of the women went to get a drink for her child. Then they proceeded over the bridge.

They crossed to Port Ewen on the left hand passageway provided for pedestrians. Mrs. Schwartz and her son, Alexander, Mrs. Parnett, Mrs. Goldman and herself with two children made up the party.

Alexander had hold of his mother's hand until they arrived at the Port Ewen side of the bridge. They were all getting ready to cross to the opposite passageway and come back to Kingston. The boy left his mother and crossed the roadway. She saw the boy on the other side of the roadway. The car came up at a high rate of speed. The car passed and she turned around and did not see the boy. She looked at the car and saw his hat fly from the car up the road. The car kept on and she saw the boy fall off the car.

The boy, she said, was on the right of the road when she saw the car approach. She first saw the car just off the bridge as it "dashed" by. She did not look before. It was a big touring car.

In reply to further questions by Mr. Flanagan she said the boy was on the extreme right of the road when she saw him last. He was to the right of the vehicle passageway about a foot. She did not see the car hit him. After the car had passed about 20 or 25 feet she saw the boy's hat fly and the car proceeded about 75 feet before the boy fell off. The car kept on going up the hill and out of sight. It was traveling about 40 miles per hour just before it hit the boy. She did not remember hearing a horn blown.

She said they were all getting ready to cross the road when the boy ran from his mother and across the road. He was on the concrete space at the end of the bridge near the passageway for vehicles. The boy was on the dirt off the concrete when she last saw him.

Mrs. Catherine Goldman was next called. She testified as to who was in the party and how they proceeded across the bridge.

The boy started across the road when they reached the Port Ewen side of the road. She saw nothing coming. Then a car came very fast. The boy was then "almost off the passageway for vehicles to go on the path." The car came quick and she did not see the boy. She heard no horn. The first saw the car near the child. It was going 40 or 50 miles an hour. It was a large touring car. The boy was on the right when the car came very quick.

The car kept on up the road and she saw the boy fall from under the car. The car did not stop when the boy dropped off. The car was traveling at a fast rate of speed as it disappeared up the road.

Asked where the boy was just before he was hit, she said he was across the road "way over." The car was near the child when she first saw it. The whole party was ready to cross the road when the car came along. When the child was struck they all screamed.

She said she did not see the car strike the boy but the "right side hit him and pulled him along." She said she did not see the car strike him but he disappeared.

She said she did not see if the child turned as though to come back across the road after once crossing and just before the car came along. The car did not swerve.

Mrs. Parnett was next called. Her testimony was about the same as to the actions of the party in crossing the bridge. The boy ran across the bridge. The car came along and kept on going at the same rate of speed. After it passed the child was gone. The boy was on the right hand side of the road all the way across the road when she last saw him. She heard no horn. She first saw the car when it was near the child. About 60 or 70 feet from the bridge she saw the boy on the roadway. The car was going over 40 miles an hour. It was a big touring car with curtains on. She first saw the boy's hat fly and then the body dropped off the car. The car kept on up the hill she did not see where it went to. Mrs. Parnett said she was hysterical.

She was sure the boy was off the pavement when she last saw him. The

Suits Arise Out Of War Contracts

Government Seeks to Collect Millions for Alleged Overcharged Work and Corporation Wants Millions Still Due for Work Completed.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 18.—Untold history of the World War was brought to light today following the filing of suits by the United States Government and the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation against each other for millions of dollars involved in the construction of war time ships.

The specific actions were these:

The government filed suit in Philadelphia late yesterday against the corporation, of which Charles M. Schwab is the head. The government seeks to collect from $11,000,000 to $15,000,000 alleged to have been overcharged by the Bethlehem and subsidiary corporations.

The shipbuilding corporation's suit, filed in New York, asks that the government be forced to pay it $9,000,000 alleged still to be due for the building of ships.

Schwab was director general of the shipping board emergency fleet corporation and it was in this capacity that he favored the corporation and subsidiaries of which he was the head, the government alleged. Denying this allegation, Schwab made public a letter to the shipping board at the time he took office under the government. This letter named the shipbuilding companies in which Schwab was interested and specified that the government must transact all business with these companies through representatives of the companies and not through Schwab himself.

BABE RUTH'S CONDITION SHOWS IMPROVEMENT.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 18.—Babe Ruth spent a fairly restful night and his condition shows improvement, according to an official statement issued this morning at St. Vincent's Hospital, where the slugger underwent an operation for intestinal abscesses yesterday. These were a development of his combined attack of influenza and indigestion which caused his collapse over a week ago.

The hospital authorities stated that Ruth's temperature was now hovering around 100. It was reiterated, however, that the player would be absent from the Yankee lineup for at least a month.

National Guard Instructor.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 18.—Major Charles L. Mitchell was today designated by the war department as instructor of the New York National Guard, with headquarters at Albany.

Hudson Shad On Market.

Hudson river shad is now being sold in Kingston. The first shad of the season was caught off Kingston Point and sold to Van Bramer, the Strand fish dealer.

Boston Ready For Celebration

Which Will Extend Through Every Middlesex Village and Farm— Riders Will be Escorted by Airplane.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Boston, Mass., April 18.—Vice-President Charles G. Dawes held the center of interest today as the preliminaries of the 150th celebration of the battle of Lexington got under way.

He was recognized by the downtown crowds as he made his way to call on Governor Fuller and Mayor Curley and attended a chamber of commerce luncheon.

General John J. Pershing was scheduled to accompany the vice-president but the time of his arrival was postponed until tomorrow.

This evening in historic old North Church, from the belfry of which Paul Revere saw the lights twinkle, a municipal observance was scheduled.

Among the speakers at the church will be Vice-President Dawes and Pauline Revere (Mrs. Nathaniel) Thayer, great granddaughter of Paul Revere.

A special feature of the evening will be the carrying of a flag raised in 1775 down the aisles of the church and up into the steeple by Paul Revere, great-great grandson of Paul Revere.

Vice-President Dawes, a relative of the famous William Dawes Jr. who rode "through Middlesex village and farm" as did Revere, tomorrow will visit the grave of his revolutionary ancestor in King's chapel burying ground here.

Meanwhile in Lexington and Concord heirlooms were being brought out, revolutionary flags were unfolded to the breeze and flags and bunting hung from almost every business building and home. Other Middlesex cities and towns, all of which have planned celebrations, were decked in red, white and blue. It was through these communities that the hoof beats of the horses ridden by Revere and Dawes resounded in the midnight of that memorable night 150 years ago.

The celebration in Lexington and Concord, where stands the bridge at which was fired the shot that started the American Revolution, will be started on Sunday, April 19, the date that the Minute Men turned back King George's red coats.

Congressman Andrew Jackson Montague, of Virginia, and Governor Fuller will speak at literary exercises.

Thousands of visitors are expected for the big '75 celebration. The vanguard began arriving by motor and railroad today. Almost every state in the Union has a representative here, many of them governors.

Monday is to be the gala day. At sunrise a battery of United States army field artillery will roar a salute from Belfry Hill in Lexington. At six a. m. an early morning parade will take place.

Meanwhile, two horseback riders, both in provincial costume, representing Revere and Dawes, escorted by Cavalry, will ride over the respective routes.

Vice-President Dawes and General Pershing in automobiles with Mrs. Dawes and Minute Men in revolutionary uniform will follow the Dawes rider.

An army airplane carrying a message from President Coolidge will fly over the two routes and will carry a return message from Lexington to the president at the White House in Washington.

About the time the airplane is winging its way southward, the giant dirigible Los Angeles will swing into sight of the crowds gathered to celebrate the opening battle of the Revolutionary War.

At 2 p. m. Monday will come the big event of the celebration—a military parade of 6,500 persons. The procession will be reviewed by the vice-president and others.

A novel feature of the parade will be the presence in the line of march of British naval and military veterans. They will be headed by Major General Sir Archibald Cameron, K. C. B.

At Concord on Monday, the fight at the Old Bridge will be reproduced. Descendants of the many Minute Men who fought and died at the bridge will take part.

EMPLOYES APPRECIATE FORMER SUPERINTENDENT

E. R. Acker until lately superintendent of the construction and maintenance department of the Kingston Gas and Electric Company, was recently waited upon by a deputation from the employes and presented with a testimonial in the form of a beautifully engraved and illuminated address as a mark of their esteem for his many high qualities. The testimonial also included a smoker's cabinet of mahogany, suitably inscribed. Mr. Acker has been transferred to the headquarters of the Central Hudson System of Gas and Electric Companies at Poughkeepsie as assistant to the general commercial manager.

Notaries Public.

The following have been appointed notaries public in and for Ulster county by Governor Alfred E. Smith: Elsie A. Boyce, 24 Lindley avenue, Kingston; Manuel Deitchdimer, 17 West Canal street, Ellenville; Robert A. Meek, Jr., Mohonk Lake.

Pay Water Rent Now.

Monday is the last day that city water rents may be paid without fees. The office at the city hall will remain open that afternoon until 4 o'clock.

DeWitt Talks on The Libel Law

MacDonald DeWitt Gives Interesting Talk on Libel and the Libel Law to First Dutch Men's Club and Guests Friday Evening.

Members of the Men's Club of the First Dutch Church and their guests, the Men's Bible Class of the Fair Street Reformed Church and of the Dutch Arms of the Port Jervis Reformed Church, enjoyed an excellent dinner and talk in the chapel of the First Dutch Church Friday evening, the dinner being prepared and served by the entertainment committee of the club and the address being given by MacDonald DeWitt of New York and Kingston.

Mr. DeWitt's topic was libel and the libel law, a subject with which he said he had become somewhat familiar through twenty-two years' work in defending libel suits against newspapers and magazines. He distinguished for the benefit of the laymen present the law relating to libel, as it may be contained in the printed word or in cartoons or pictures, and slander, which is the spoken word, and the greater latitude which the law allows a person in speaking ill of his neighbor than in expressing that opinion in writing.

By far the greatest number of libel suits arise from matters not relevant to the subject which is being reported, but which is added sometimes by writers to furnish so-called "pep" and interest to the story. One such writer, who was required to dig up facts to substantiate a newspaper article he had written finally expressed himself as being convinced that he should "follow the bear, not follow the rabbits."

The various general principles in libel law were illustrated by Mr. DeWitt with incidents in cases which he had tried, sometimes defending the Hearst newspapers, sometimes the New York Sun and sometimes the New York Daily News, for which he is general counsel, besides Vogue and the other Nast publications and other magazines.

Sometimes, he said, he had been in doubt whether it would not have been beter for him to have followed a commercial career instead of spending his life defending libel suits, but the newspaper occupied such an important part in the everyday life of the public that he felt satisfied he had been doing the right thing after all. How great a part the newspapers play in the daily life of men and women has been brought home to New Yorkers when the printers' strike occurred several years ago, and for one day no newspapers appeared, and after that they all appeared in abbreviated form. The strike also demonstrated to business men the value of the newspapers, because in their abbreviated form they were compelled to omit the advertisements of the big department stores, and until the strike was ended the dullest places in New York were these stores. As a result, the stores had increased their advertising when conditions became normal, and had found that their business increased accordingly.

LARGE CROWD AT KAPLAN STORE OPENING

The large furniture store of M. Kaplan, corner Crown and North Front streets, which was thrown open for inspection last night attracted many people who admired the interior and exterior arrangement. The large plate glass front on both streets lighted by scores of electric lights, with baskets of flowers presented a pretty sight. Hundreds viewed the immense display of furniture and other articles and it was the opinion of all that there is no more modern and complete stocked store of its kind along the Hudson river valley. Souvenirs were given the ladies. Work will now be started modernizing the second floor and later the front will be stuccoed.

POLICE BOARD MET FRIDAY BUT FAILED TO APPOINT

The board of police commissioners met Friday evening at the city hall but only routine business was transacted. It was expected that the board would appoint a patrolman to the police force, but the appointment was deferred.

Adjournment in Assault Case.

An adjournment in the assault case, The People vs. Caroline Ascarini, was taken Friday until Monday at 10 o'clock, when the case will be continued. Testimony on the part of The People has not been completed. The case will probably be finished Monday. The case of The People vs. Albert Frost has been set down for trial Tuesday.

Stolen Auto Recovered.

Patrick McConnell of Delaware avenue, reported to the police shortly after 9 o'clock Friday evening that his Chevrolet sedan had been stolen. At 11:55 o'clock that evening it was found abandoned near Sahler's Sanitarium by Officer Shoemaker.

Write For Reservations.

The Kingston women who expect to attend the luncheon at the Third District Federation meeting in Albany next Thursday should write by Monday to Mrs. Elizabeth W. Smith, 262 Hamilton street, Albany for their dinner reservations.

Band Rehearsal Sunday.

A rehearsal of the Citizens' Band will be held Sunday at 10:30 at the Elks' Club.

Town Board Refuses Pay To Traffic Cop

Citizens Protest Against Action That Leaves Reckless Drivers Free to Endanger Lives of Pedestrians and Decent Motorists.

Port Ewen, N. Y., April 18, 1925.
Editor, Kingston Freeman:

The people of the town of Esopus, especially Port Ewen village, are in a state of anxious expectation, awaiting the action of the town board regarding the ban placed upon the activities of an officer of the law.

An active official has been discovered in the person of Frank Phillips who without fear or favor has been the means of curbing reckless driving by automobile operators. The time has arrived when these violators of the law discovered that some one was guarding the innocent pedestrian and careful drivers, and their peaceful security was insured.

An incident occurred at a meeting of the town board on March 28th last, resulting in the refusal to compensate the officer for his services. By a tie vote his bill was rejected, Justices McKenzie, Best and Beaver believing that his bill should be allowed, and Supervisor Elsworth, Justice Van Wagenen and Town Clerk Ferguson opposed.

This action has disgusted the law abiding citizens of this town, as it has been the means of the cessation of traffic regulation, circumspect or thoughtful operators are obliged to surrender the whole highway so that frenzied drivers imbued with the theory that theirs is the culmination of human conduct can use the highways and impunity.

The people of Port Ewen and those residing along and using the state highway are awake to the influences dominating the action of the town board; it has the earmarks of prejudice caused by a difference in political ideas; if that is the reason an admonition in the form of resentment should be made so strong as to thoroughly convince "the powers that be," that the people should have some protection notwithstanding the many bugbears which has been so surreptitiously disseminated.

As a result of the negative action of the town board the lawless have been encouraged to continue their recklessness and our community is in a state of uncertainty owing to the lack of police protection; pedestrians who use the side walk in the village must take their chances of being maimed or killed by a young boy who utilizes the walk as a place to exercise his pony, or being driven therefrom to the highway and being killed or injured by the many automobiles It is only a question now in Port Ewen as to the method they should adopt in order to secure a passport in order to travel to that bourne from which no pedestrian usually returns.

Suggestions have been made to appeal to the Automobile Association or its president for protection, but how can any benefit be derived from such appeal until the president and county attorney finally determines the momentous question regarding the constitutionality of city ordinances.

The juggling by a junto for personal or political aggrandizement at the expense of the innocent has become tiresome to the large majority of citizens, and the killing of the youth, Alexander Schwartz, on Wednesday has aroused our community to such an extent that the Brotherhood of the Reformed Church, a society embracing over one-half of our best citizens became aroused and expressed an opinion having no uncertain meaning, passing resolutions demanding traffic regulation.

The Parent-Teacher Association composed of parents of our youth met on Thursday April 16th last and enthusiastically adopted the following:

"The Parent-Teacher Association of Port Ewen having heard of the distressing accident occurring on the 15th day of April, and upon investigation, we learn that the cause of such accident was a lack of traffic enforcement.

"We place ourselves on record as being in favor of a proper enforcement by which reckless and incompetent operators of automobiles can be compelled to obey the law and show respect to those who are careful and prudent, and to give to the pedestrians a feeling of security while on the highways of this town. We feel that any effort to discourage any movement to provide for the care and safety of our people and especially the innocent children should be emphatically condemned."

Time brings the truth to light; the people of Port Ewen have begun to realize this attempt to thwart the wishes of a large majority by a few who have arrogantly assumed the power to dictate to law abiding citizens.

A warning to this group of self made dictators should be sufficient; if not heeded the burden will be greater than you can bear.

Anticipating an era of safety for the town of Esopus, I am,

AN ANXIOUS CITIZEN.

Improvements at Freyd's.

Frank Freyd, the tobacconist at 258 Fair street, following in the line of progress made by Schultz & Bogart, who have completed improvements on an extended scale to their office building, adjoining, has started improving his store. The binestone platform entrance has been cut down and a tile floor is to be laid in the clear stone of an attractive design. Mr. Freyd is well known as a progressive merchant.

New York Central
—a useful Citizen

New York Central's share in promoting the welfare and prosperity of this city is measured by more than our service in carrying passengers and freight, and mail and express.

This service, of course, is indispensable. Upon its efficient operation, day in and day out, in all kinds of weather, depends the industrial life of the city. It links the city through 12,000 miles of New York Central steel highways with the markets of the whole country.

But New York Central is more than a carrier. It is a good neighbor and a useful citizen.

New York Central paid taxes in 1924:
New York Central is one of the largest taxpayers and one of the largest employers of labor in this country.
In the State of New York in 1924 our taxes were $10,986,983.

Our welfare—and the welfare of our employees—is inseparably linked with that of the communities that depend on New York Central for railroad service.

The old Tiffany Building, on Fifteenth Street and Union Square, New York City.

Laid 57 years ago— this roof is still good!

Back in 1868, the old Tiffany Building at 15th Street and Union Square, New York City, was roofed with Barrett Pitch and Felt. This roof is still staunchly weather-tight!

We know roofs. But we don't know any that can match the endurance records of scores of Barrett roofs of this type—roofs built 40 or more years ago that are still in excellent condition.

Isn't that the kind of roof you want for your building? Today there is a comprehensive line of Barrett Built-Up Roofs. We lay these roofs—we recommend them. Come in. We will be glad to help you with your roofing problem.

Real American At Immanuel

Descendant of Hudson River Valley Tribe of Indians Will Speak in Lutheran Church on Monday Evening.

Sam Miller, a full-blooded Stockbridge Indian from Wisconsin will speak at Immanuel Church on Monday, April 20, at 8 o'clock in the hall. The subject of his address will be "The Missionary Work of the Missouri Synod Among the American Indians."

Mr Miller is in this vicinity under the auspices of the Albany District of the Walther League. Between the 15th and 27th he will address the various congregations of the conference.

The Lutheran missionary to the Indians in Wisconsin has the following to say about Mr. Miller: "Sam Miller is a full-blooded Indian, descendant of the old Mohican tribe which populated the Hudson River valley before that valley had its present name and his people were roaming our New York woods before the white man knew they existed. Sam's father was the last legal head or spokesman of the Stockbridge tribe. Today Sam is perhaps the most influential member of it. He holds the office of chairman of the town of Red Springs and is president of our Lutheran congregation for Indians.

"Mr. Miller has had a good education, being a graduate of Carlysle College, Pa. He is a talented speaker and ably presents his subject to his audiences. He has been from time to time used by the Lutheran Board of Indian Missions as publicity man. He is now working for the same purpose, only on a somewhat more extensive scale, and may be kept at his work for several years. He has just finished a lecture in Florida and has lectured in twenty-six churches in New York city While his chief interest is to acquaint the people with the necessity of the Gospel for the Indian, his lectures prove beneficial in other ways

"Sam and his tribe have become entirely civilized and wears no blankets nor feathers, except at night in bed. The collection taken after the lecture will be sent by the church to the Indian mission treasury."

Mr Miller will be at Immanuel Lutheran Church, Livingston Street, on Monday evening, April 20, at 8 o'clock. A cordial invitation is herewith extended the public to come and hear Mr. Miller on the Gospel work among his people.

Radio Health Talk on Rickets

Dr. Florence L. McKay Gave Radio Health Talk to Mothers Over WGY Friday Evening—Both Preventable and Curable.

"Rickets" was the subject of a talk to mothers given by Dr. Florence L. McKay over the radio Friday evening from Station WGY. Dr. McKay is director of the division of maternity, infancy and child hygiene of the state department of health, and her talk was one of the regular weekly health talks broadcast by that department.

The prevention and cure of rickets is important for while it is probably never a direct cause of death, babies suffering from rickets are much more liable to other diseases, and have less chance of recovery.

"If you will look at your baby carefully, with as impartial an eye as possible," states Dr. McKay, "you may be able to tell for yourself whether he has rickets, though you will probably see the signs more readily in your neighbor's baby. Whether you are using the parental or the neighborly eye, examine the baby's head and see whether it looks a bit square and bumpy instead of round and smooth. The bumpy places will be found on either side of the middle of the forehead and on the side of the skull about half-way between the ear and the top.

"If the baby is 16 or 18 months old, and the soft spot has not closed, look out for other signs of rickets. Head sweating is one of the most frequent signs, and the baby's pillow may be wet with perspiration even when he is not too warmly dressed. Another common sign is delayed teething. His wrists and ankles may show enlargements, and the long bones of the leg may be bent in or out, resulting in knock-knees or bow-legs. On the sides of the chest, more or less parallel to the breast a row of little bumps may be seen or felt on the ribs. These comprise the so-called 'rickety rosary.' The breast bone may be pushed forward causing 'pigeon breast,' and the ribs may be bent in to form a hollow or groove down the side of the chest, or the rib border may be flaring Sometimes there is curvature of the spine. It is not necessary for a child to show all of these signs; usually only a few will be found in any one instance.

"Rickets results from faulty bone formation involving calcium or lime salts which are important factors in bone growth There are differences of opinion as to how this is brought about, but it is common in both bottle-fed and breast-fed babies. The signs which are evident to the eye may begin to appear during the period from six months to two or more years of age. As early as three weeks they may be discovered by X-ray. Some bony deformities started in babyhood continue to be a handicap in later childhood and adult life. Bow legs are unlovely, but there are other consequences far more serious, such as the rachitic pelvis. Such deformity of the pelvic bones in women frequently results in operative childbirth, with danger of injury or death to mother and baby.

"Fortunately, rickets is both preventable and curable, and the deformities may be corrected if taken early. The same treatment is used for both prevention and cure. In the first place, the rules of infant hygiene should be strictly observed in the baby's daily care. In addition to the best possible diet, including orange juice daily, fresh air, daily bathing, regular hours and regular bowel movements are necessary. Furthermore, there are two very important and efficient remedies easily available to all babies for prevention or cure of rickets. These are sunlight and cod liver oil.

"Sunlight contains certain rays called 'ultra violet rays' which have a curative action. As window glass interferes with their action, it is necessary to expose a small area of skin to direct sunlight. A good plan for sun treatment is to push back the clothing from the forearm or the knee so that the sun shines directly upon the skin for about half an hour when the baby is having its daily outing. It is good for the skin to become quite tanned. Unless it is very cold and windy the warmth of the sun-rays keeps the part from getting too cold and the baby soon becomes accustomed to it. In cold weather this may be done in the house by an open window. It is interesting to observe that rickets increases during the dark winter months when direct sunlight is infrequent.

"Cod liver oil contains certain ingredients which help in proper bone formation, and which are not always found in sufficient quantities in either mother's milk or cow's milk. It is a food, just as is olive oil, and a very important food for babies. The only difficulty in giving it is its unpleasant odor and taste. And here the difficulty is chiefly with the mother, for nearly all babies like it, and even older children are easily taught to like it when not influenced by the turning up of the mother's nose or the tone of her voice. These same parents do not as a rule refuse fish because of the odor in cooking, or even smelly cheeses. As a matter of fact in these days the cod liver oil made from fresh fish livers is far less objectionable than the varieties known in our own childhood. It should be started soon after birth, and may be given daily or twice a day in doses of from one-half to two teaspoonfuls as your physician may direct, according to the child's age. Remembering that signs of rickets may be detected by X-ray when the baby is but three weeks of age, the importance of beginning treatment early will be realized.

"Every mother who knows these few simple facts has in her own hands the fate of her baby as regards rickets. If she takes her baby regularly to her physician for examination, she will learn not only these but many other equally interesting measures for keeping her baby well It is the well babies that really count, and it is so much easier to keep them well than to cure them when they are sick.

"May Day is to be Child Health Day. Celebrate it by being sure that your baby escapes rickets and its consequences."

WHAT A FRENCH AUDIENCE WORE

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

The taffeta frock appears to be conquering any lingering prejudices. It is such a particularly happy choice when united with the flare that it can easily afford to ignore any such comments that are detrimental to its success. Besides which, the taffeta coat is smart, and the touch of embroidered lingeries which seems to be forever associated in one's mind with taffeta is also in the ascendancy.

For those who do not like taffeta, there are always the flat crepes, and a recent letter from Paris contains the following gossipy account of a premiere at a French theater, which is described as one of the most formal and important gala nights of the social season.

Serpendre Fined Gives Novel Necklace.

Perhaps not hay sizeable the audience, from this sied, and perhaps what they chose may help in deciding the momentous question of the new dance or dinner gown.

"Chiffon frocks of all descriptions, in this particular instance, shared popularity with crystal embroidered sheaths, in the smarter notes, whereas the innumerable lame and embroidered sheaths composed the major part of models worn. Scarfs of chiffon or net are still favored by many women, especially to accompany the youthful type of dress with some fulness in the skirt. Flowers on the shoulders have not yet been replaced by any other accessory, and are being worn with all types of costumes."

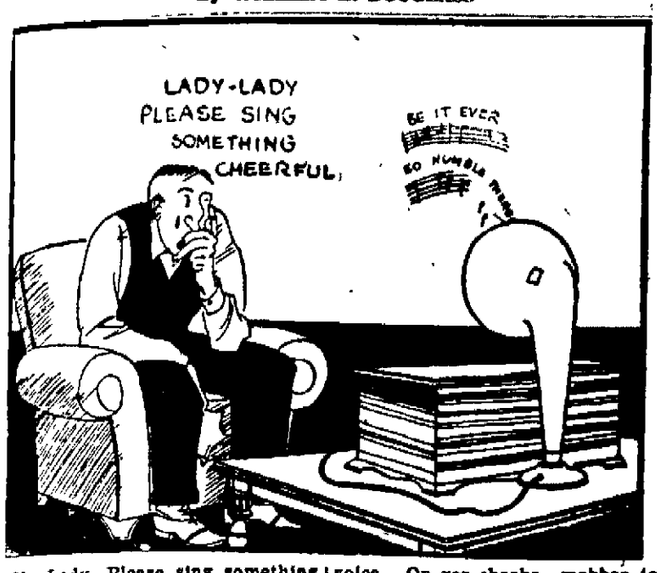
By WILLIAM E. DOUGLASS



Oh, Lady. Please sing something cheerful. If you knew how you're breaking my hart wou'd sing somethin' that wuzn't so tearful an' leave out all that homesicky part. "Home, Sweet Home" an' that one called "Forgotten" are the kind that bring tears to my eye. This here popular stuff ain't so rotten so why don't you give it a try. Say, honestly, somehow or other when you sing there's a lump in my throat an' I want to go right home to mother 'cause yer sad tunes are gettin' my goat. Sometimes when I set there a lis'inin' I could swear there's a sob in yer voice. On yer cheeks mebbee tear drops are gils'in'! That ain't; no may to make me rejoice. Can't you sing songs that ain't full of weepin' somethin' more er les happy an' gay. You might sing the sob stuff while I'm sleepin' then it wouldn't affect me this way. But Lady I'm stuck on yer singin' in spite of those sorrowful lays, an' I'm hopin' that you'll be a springin' somethin' good on us one of these days. So won't you please sing somethin' cheerful 'fore I go out, to finish the chores. I'll be waitin' tuned in fer a earful, right after the baseball scores.—Copyright 1925, Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company.

Grange Events In Many States

The Oldest Farm Organization in America Still Shows Lots of Pep and Varied Activity.

Fully 5,000 of the Granges of the United States have initiated a class of new members since the beginning of the new year and in some instances this represents a sizable addition to the membership. The number of new subordinate Granges organized during the first quarter of the new year was also far above any previous quarter in a long time.

The Grange organization in Ohio has adopted a regional deputy plan, whereby each deputy of the State Grange is made responsible for a certain number of subordinate Granges and is expected to assist them in their plans and progress during the current year. This plan has been in operation for several years in Michigan and has worked out with noteworthy success.

It is estimated that the Granges of the United States own more than $2,000,000 worth of property, including equipment, regalia, working tools, furnishings, etc., exclusive of the Grange halls themselves.

In York county, Pennsylvania, the Grange is vigorously protesting against the recent action of the State Game Commission in importing and liberating rabbits at the beginning of the winter, the claim being made that these animals have wrought great havoc in young orchards and nurseries by causing the death of thousands of promising trees. The members of the Grange express the opinion that no more rabbits should be released for propagating purposes for a long time. The Granges are taking up this subject vigorously and propose to have a change made in the program of the State Game Commission.

A "family record" indeed in the Grange comes to light in the state of Maine where a single subordinate has upon its membership roll more than one hundred persons who are either Jordans or descendants from or members of the Jordan family.

The Grange in New York state is waging war against advertising billboards, and an appeal has been issued to all Grange members not to lease space for billboards upon their land nor permit advertising signs of any nature to be painted upon fences or buildings.

Granges in many sections of the country, including several State Granges, have gone strongly on record as opposed to the creation of a national department of education, with its head a cabinet officer; and the Grange is universally opposed to a centralized control of school affairs at Washington.

When the National Grange meets in Sacramento, California, in November for its annual convention, a solid Pullman train load will attend from New England, making a wide sweep of the country on a 30 days' trip and covering fully 10,000 miles.

A Massachusetts Grange which offered prizes to the school children for collecting tent caterpillar nests, had nearly 13,000 nests brought in by the youngsters. In that state several subordinate Granges every year carry out this form of practical community service.

A Grange in Illinois recently "sold the ladies' feet" in its membership, by having the feminine portion of the membership arrayed one at a time on the stage with the curtain raised just high enough to carry out the auction idea. A goodly sum was thus realized, to be applied towards the community projects of that Grange.

Two novel extremes in Grange affairs, proving the wide appeal of the organization to persons of widely varying age, came in connection with the installation of officers for 1925. In Massachusetts one set of Grange officers were installed by a high school girl 16 years of age and a seventh degree member of the organization; the officers of a New York Grange were installed by a man over 90 years of age, who was a charter member of the Grange more than a generation.

The Grange in Ohio has been honored by the appointment by the governor of State Master Harry A. Caton as one of the trustees of the Ohio State University. State Master Caton is a prominent figure in the agricultural life of the state, while State Lecturer George R. Lewis has been for the past two years state director of fairs. Both are wide-awake farm leaders, with strong support among the membership throughout the entire state.

The farmers on irrigated projects in the state of Arizona are making a united call for the organization of Granges in that state, and the request is being favorably viewed by the leaders in the Grange organization. Irrigation farmers in Colorado, Idaho and other states have been successfully organized into Granges for many years, and the outlook for extending the Grange organization in the state of Arizona is promising.

Rabbi Heller Preaches Here

Dr. Nachman Heller, prominent in rabbinical, cultural, educational, eleemosynary and Zionistic institutions of various cities and centers of Jewish gravitation, is a visitor in the city, the guest of the Rev. Morris Miller, 16 Chambers street, and was heard from the pulpit of Agudath Achim Synagogue, West Union street, the incumbency of Rabbi Ezekiel Leavitt, this morning at 9 in the course of the divine services. He will preach this evening preceding the vesper prayers.

The Sons of Aaron, who died while entering the Tabernacle for the offering of sacrifices, which is part and parcel of the day's recitation from the Mosaic Book of Leviticus, will make the topic for the Rabbi's discourses, as there is nothing new under the sun, people going to prayer meetings nowadays as well as in times of yore with sinister desires and greedy wishes, death and destruction for former friends and erstwhile neighbors making the thoughts and the aspirations of their strivings and inclinations forgetting that they themselves turn spiritually dead right there and then, before the mischief is done to others and their designs will have come to pass.

Rabbi Heller is known, likewise, in the fields of literature and journalism, contributing to papers and periodicals and publishing books and volumes both, in Hebrew and English, his recent production being the Books of Psalms paraphrased in rhyme and rythm, in Hebrew, translated in English and Yiddish and commented in English in the lines of modern research and investigation.

He is no stranger in Kingston, having visited here before and addressed his co-religionists on several occasions. He will also be entertained by the Rev. Jacob Koplowitz and other gentlemen connected with Congregation Agudath Achim. The rabbi will also address the pupils of the Hebrew School Sunday morning at 10 o'clock at their institute on Post street.

Escapes Death

KING BORIS

King Boris, of Bulgaria, narrowly escaped death when the automobile in which he and his retinue were riding was set upon by a band of men, believed to be Communists, who hid in ambush outside of the city of Sofia. Two of the King's attendants were killed in the gun battle, and one bullet clipped off part of the King's moustache. He jumped out of the car at the first shot and led his soldiers in repelling the attackers, who escaped.

Sassafras in Medicine

The roots of sassafras very early in American history became an important article of medicine. It is sometimes called the "ague tree" as a decoction of its bark was supposed to cure that disease. Sassafras tea, an infusion of the young shoots and roots, has long been a favorite remedy for colds and a tonic, being a sudorific and a stimulant.

Watch Children

Motorists are urged when approaching children to use the horn, but not to depend upon it to blow the kiddies off the street or to replace the brake. When the children are trying to cross the street motorists are asked to give them a chance and wait for them as the average parent would like to have another motorist wait for some one who is near and dear to him.

FIRE PREVENTION.

Question—When a frame building burns down, what is left? Answer—The chimney alone, because it is built of brick. Chimneys are built of brick because they are fireproof. Why not construct the whole building of brick, that is Real Fire Prevention. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. When you build, use brick exclusively. There may be a slight increase in first cost, but always a large saving in maintenance. Building brick and sand. TERRY BROTHERS CO. Tel. 1674.

NO TARIFF REVISION.

As was stated some time ago, there will be no revision of tariff in the next Congress. There may be "pop-gun" attempts, but that is as far as it will go. Just prior to the convention of the National Cotton Manufacturers' Association in Washington a rumor was started that they were going to begin a drive for revision upward on cotton textiles, but this was scouted by those who were "inside the ropes" and the canard was exploded by the silence of the organization on the subject. Certain individual members may have thought higher rates were necessary, but the matter was not agitated.

The rumor, however, seems to have upset the leaders of one or two farm organizations, and they promptly issued a counterblast demanding that the tariff on manufactures be lowered, but opposing any tinkering with the agricultural schedule. The importation of manufactured goods last year was greater than all of our imports of every nature the year before the war. Imports of textiles, cotton, wool, linen, silk, etc., totaled about $320,000,000. It does not appear that there is any kick coming on the score that the present tariff law cuts off imports to this country, and it is dangerous practice to attempt to arouse the agricultural against the manufacturing classes.

Meanwhile we must put our trust in Lord—General Lord, Director of the Budget—who has been drafted by President Coolidge to go forth and teach all citizens the value of economy, that being Mr. Coolidge's remedy for the evils of depression.

ANOTHER PLOT.

The Torquemada of the United States Senate is hot on the scent of another plot. Senator Thomas Walsh, of Montana, charges there is a well organized movement to discredit Congress, especially the Senate, being conducted throughout the United States, "with the view of enabling the Administration to put through the Mellon tax plan."

So far as the Senate is concerned the "well organized movement" originated within that Chamber. It is doubtful if the Senate has ever reached so low a plane in public esteem as during the past two or three years. Character assassination, "unholy alliances;" the drafting of crooks and jailbirds to testify against public men; the constant harassing of Cabinet officers; the clinging to archaic rules of procedure which have prevented needed legislation; cliques, blocs; the Harrisons and Heflins and Caraways; the audacity of some Senators just elected, and the cowardice of others who expect to run again in two years,—all these have conspired to create disgust in the public mind for that "august deliberative body." In all these matters Senator Walsh has made a record.

And yet the majority of the Senators are good men. They have simply permitted a rancorous and mischief-making minority to boss the chamber, and their own togas have been spattered by the filth ejected. If the majority would for one session combine, regardless of party, to put the kibosh on the mudgunners the Senate would speedily rehabilitate itself in public esteem.

Asserting that "more than one hundred alterations and deletions have been made in the Holy Bible in an up-to-date prohibition Bible," Captain W. H. Stayton, head of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, charges the compilers with acting as censors of the Lord's work. He gives a long list of changes. Within the past two or three years several Southern States have passed laws forbidding the teaching of the doctrine of evolution as being contrary to biblical authority. The question arises, What will be their attitude toward this new compilation which distorts the language of the Word of God? Shall there be a repudiation of the 18th and 19th verses of the 22nd chapter of Revelations? Need prohibition realists go so far?

In connection with the Texas law barring negroes from Democratic primaries, the courts have decided that a Democratic primary is not an election and therefore a negro may be lawfully barred therefrom. Previously it had been supposed that in the Southern States the negroes had no part, and could have no proper part, in Democratic primaries because they are all Republicans.

President Coolidge at least had better luck than President Tyler, whose nominations of Caleb Cushing for Secretary of the Treasury, James Madison Porter for Secretary of War, and David Henshaw for Secretary of the Navy, were all rejected by the Senate.

GOING TO THE HOSPITAL.

You may sometimes wonder why your doctor wants you to go to the hospital when you are sick.

You think of the various inconveniences, the expense perhaps, separation from loved ones, and so forth.

Now your doctor understands all that as well as you do. He knows that everything else being equal, it would be better for you to be amid the home surroundings

However, when he made his first examination he depended to a great extent upon what you told him If you are a high strung nervous individual, and you do a lot of thinking about yourself, including considerable reading about the various ailments of the body, you may quite unconsciously describe symptoms that are characteristic of a certain serious ailment.

Your doctor makes a physical examination of you, and finds some condition that would seem to agree with your statements, and others that are vastly different.

How is he to get more information?

Well, he would like to investigate you still further by examining the blood, the urine, the spinal fluids. He would like to make hourly tests, give certain special treatments, and watch their effects.

By having you in the hospital, this could all be done by the house physicians and nurses, in the ordinary routine of the day.

Thus your doctor will have not only what you tell him, and what he discovers by examining you, but also what he finds out from the laboratory findings in your blood, urine, and so forth.

This is the usual reason why your doctor wants to have you in the hospital. You can be watched closely, and treated promptly.

However, often your doctor wants you to get away from the cares of home, as the best means of getting you well again.

On the other hand your doctor may not send you to the hospital, even if you are seriously ill, because the hospital surroundings might have such a depressing effect upon you that it would interfere with your recovery.

Your best plan is to trust your doctor in this matter, because his whole idea is to get you well again, and he will do everything with this end in view.

SKIDDING TO BE PUNISHED AS RECKLESS DRIVING

Skidding is viewed as reckless driving in the 1924 report of the Connecticut state motor vehicle department. The three leading causes of automobile accidents in the state were inattention on the part of the driver, failure to grant right of way and skidding; 1,786 skidding accidents were recorded last year.

The three causes of skidding, according to Robbins B. Stoeckel, state motor vehicle commissioner, in a recent pamphlet, are wet and slippery roadways, too much speed and improper driving. Remedies are the use of non-skid chains and caution against making runners out of the rear wheels.

A further statement by Commissioner Stoeckel is that a skidding accident may no longer be considered an unavoidable mishap and that the time is coming when cases of skidding accidents will be punished as reckless driving. Enforcement authorities will demand more knowledge of the causes of skidding and insist that the operator so conduct himself that none of the personal causes by which he contributes to the skidding accident are chargeable to him.

HOW

GLASS MAY BE DRILLED; EXTREME CARE NEEDED.— Unfortunately, glass has a habit of cracking just as the last hole is being bored. Drilling glass is a tedious job, to say the least, although there are two methods by which it may be done.

The first is by allowing hydrofluoric acid to eat its way through, and the second is the old-fashioned method of drilling with carborundum and turpentine.

In both cases the panel, after being cut to size, must be spotted with a glass-cutting tool for location of holes.

When using the drilling methods, patience is surely a virtue; without it, cracked panels will be the reward. The materials required are a hand drill, a three-cornered file and a small quantity of carborundum, and some turpentine, which can be obtained at any paint supply house.

The very tip end is broken off the three-cornered file, and the remaining length, which should not be longer than three inches, is clamped in the hand drill and used the same as if drilling hard rubber. A light pressure is used and fairly high speed.

Frequent applications of turpentine must be made to the point. Alternations can be made from the file point to that of a piece of pointed carborundum fastened in the same manner in the drill. As the drilling proceeds, lighter and lighter pressure must be used, as the glass is naturally weakened at the point of drilling. It is suggested that the constructor try drilling a hole or two in some scrap glass to get the "knack" before he tries it on an expensive glass panel.

How Legislative Power Is Divided in Denmark

Denmark is a constitutional monarchy. The legislative power is vested in the king and the rigsdag or diet, much as the legislative power in British countries is vested in the king and parliament. The Danish rigsdag is composed of two bodies—the folkething, the house of commons, and the landsthing, or senate. All men and women twenty-five years of age, with a fixed place of abode possess the franchise and are eligible for election. The folkething is composed of 149 members, 117 of whom are elected by the method of proportional representation in 23 districts; 31 additional seats are divided among such parties not having obtained sufficient returns at the district elections; one member is elected for the Faroe Islands by simple majority. The term of the legislature is four years, explains the Family Herald.

The members of the landsthing, or senate, are elected indirectly by such of the folkething's voters as are thirty-five years of age. The members of the landsthing sit for eight years. The rigsdag must meet every year on the first Tuesday in October.

The executive government, very much like that of Great Britain, is in the hands of the king and his ministers who are responsible to the rigsdag.

How Slogan Was Born

Mr. Ralph C. Richards was closely connected with the initiation of the safety-first movement. He was general claim agent of the Chicago and Northwestern railway at the time and held a number of safety rallies with the object of educating the men in safety standards. It is not stated positively, however, that he originated the slogan "Safety first." The bureau of mines says that the phrase "Safety first" became a national slogan in the year 1911 when the bureau of mines gave a national safety first demonstration at Pittsburgh, Pa. Previous to this the phrase, "Safety is the first consideration," was used on the stationery and among the employees of the H. C. Frick Coke and Steel company of Pittsburgh and the Illinois Steel company of Chicago. But since the national demonstration these firms and a great many others dealing with safety appliances have adopted this phrase.

How Koreans Dress

The city of Seoul, now called Keijo, the seat of the Korean government, is a place of quaint dress. White is the universal color of outer clothing whether for men or for women. The women, who are short and fat, wear fantastic balloon cotton skirts. The men wear a "Mother Hubbard" robe, baggy trousers tied at the ankles and a transparent "ping" hat many sizes too small, tied under the chin. Long, thin whiskers, great horn-rimmed goggles, hair put up in a queer top-knot to signify manhood, and pipes with stems two or three feet long complete the picture. When in mourning for a male relative, a man wears an immense straw hat shaped like a toadstool.—Youth's Companion.

How to Cut Glass Circle

To cut a circle of glass from a square piece, first mark the glass with a circular glass cutter and then mark four diagonal lines with a straight glass cutter from the circumference to the corners, says Popular Science Monthly. Turn the glass over on a flat surface and tap lightly with a pointed tool such as a cold chisel over the markings.

Record Year for Motor Touring

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., April 18.—A action-wide survey of the touring ossibilities of the 1925 season indi- ates that the swelling tide of long- istance automobile touring will each unprecedented proportions this ear, according to a forecast issued om the National Headquarters of he American Automobile Association oday.

The 1925 crop of motor tourists, he A. A. A. survay declared, will be orth two and half billions of dollars o a thousand and one communities cated along the playgrounds of the ation and along the highways and ails leading to the centers of motor ourist traffic.

The figures used in the forecast re conservative and are based on ata supplied by pivotal sections of he country where the business of atering to motor tourist traffic has een placed on a dependable basis. he demand for touring information nd facilities and the preparations al- eady made for the season all go to dicate that previous records will be roken.

Florida's harvest of tourist gold is stimated at $500,000,000; Californ- a is making preparations for a mil- on motor tourists this season, with lso half a billion dollars as its goal; he North West with Colorado as the ateway of the region will run a close econd to California and Florida; 25,000 cars registered in Colorado st year, according to the Denver ourist Bureau and at the rate of early increases the mark for this eason is 175,000 to 200,000 automo- iles. According to official figures 5,671 motorists entered the State of regon last season. As compared ith 315,916 cars which registered in he National Parks last year, the ark Service is now looking forward o a banner year with 400,000 cars as he objective. Three A clubs alone ill route more than 300,000 tourists to New England.

With conditions for touring more avorable than ever before there is very reason to expect at least a 25 er cent increase in the number of utomobiles that will make long-dis- ance trips, the National Touring oard of the A. A. A. predicts.

There are more roads and better oads for tourist traffic; many new inks have been filled in; there is etter touring information available argely due to the more efficient or- anization of motor clubs; there are ore motor camps while more hotels long the highways recognize the mportance of better service to the ourist trade.

"Not only is motor touring a gi- antic business and a great commun- y builder but the growing habit of sing the automobile more and more or long-distance trips is one of the ost healthful phases of motordom oday", Thomas P. Henry, president f the American Automobile Associa- on declared.

President Henry attributes the tre- endous growth of motor touring to our principal factors, namely, the xtension of the good roads pro- ram; the increase in the number nd efficiency of motor clubs; the ealization on the part of the average otorist that only by greater use of is car for pleasure does he get the ost out of his investment; and fin- lly the development of community rganization to attract tourist traf- c. He said:

"There was never a better time to wn an automobile. In the past welve months a total of one billion ollars has been spent on road build- ng and maintenance by the Federal overnment, the states and the mu- nicipalities. Many of the transcon- tinental highways have been im- proved. $60,000,000 having been spent on the Lincoln Highway alone while 40,000 new miles of road have been constructed.

"Motor club service has been enormously extended. The American Automobile Association through its 789 clubs has made preparations to route 2,000,000 automobiles which means 6,000,000 tourists this season. There are few places in the land where Three A service will not ex- tend. Our policy is to follow the tourist through. Our National Tour- ing Bureau issues to each club a road report on conditions of the main or arterial highways of the country. This is an important ser- vice feature and should help to pre- vent the congestion of traffic on the main trunk lines.

"There are more than 3,000 motor camps maintained by com- munities and by private individuals. In the new A. A. A. Camping Manual 2,600 of these are named as stand- ard. To the motorist who wanders far afield, this manual will prove an invaluable guide and in the manual he will find a detailed description of the facilities offered by each camp. In our Hotel Book 15,000 hotels are named thus giving an assurance that the tourist will have at his disposal a maximum selection of over-night accommodations at a reasonable cost.

"Despite the popularity of the public camp site, the A. A. A. finds that there is still a great opportun- ity for the development of small hotels on routes leading to tourist centers. If attractive and well-kept, these hotels can do business with the motor tourist who neither cares to camp out nor to invest in the lux- uries of the big city hotels.

"The large amount of money that changes hands as a result of tourist travel goes to show once more that good roads are of far greater value to the community than they are to the individual motorist. Every com- munity located on a road used by tourists receives its share of this money and those communities which realize the value of this business and put themselves in a position to profit by it, will be the ones that will re- ceive the major part of this great source of income. In addition to the money given by the motorist to the hotels, the garages and the service stations on his way, the motor tour- ist is in many cases a prospective in- vestor. Many of them are seeking new homes while thousands settle in communities they visit. Many pur- chase unimproved land. For this reason the motor tourist occupies the position of an important agency in the creation of community values. If this factor was more clearly recognized motordom would not have to fight so many legislative proposals of an annoying and re- strictive character.

"While the material results of motor touring are tremendous, per- haps the greatest benefit accruing to the country from the development is the social influence. Hundreds of thousands of families of limited means now enjoy annual vacations, visiting the beauty spots of America with their cars. Seashore and moun- tain, National Forests and Parks, lakes and streams are all available to millions of our citizens at a cost very little higher than our ordinary living expenses. To put these with- in striking distance of the multitudes swarming in our industrialized cit- ies is one of the great boons that the automobile has brought to our mod- ern civilization.

Will Please Children

Children's rooms offer an excellent field for stencils, especially in the home without a nursery. Frolicking children, animals, windmills and clowns, flowers and domestic fowls are designs in keeping with the world of play. Background colors for such rooms should be light and cheerful. Applied decorations usually look best if done in primary or strong contrast- ing colors.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

An Up to Date Model in Ensemble Style for Stout Figures With Narrow Hips.

5073. Bengaline or kasha would be good for this design. It consists of a one piece straightline dress that may be finished with short or long sleeves and a tunic with open fronts. The tunic may be omitted, or finished separate from the dress.

The pattern is cut in seven sizes: 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52 inches bust measure. The width at the foot of the dress is 1¾ yard. To make this stylish model for a 40 inch size will require five yards of 54 inch material if made with long sleeves. To make with short sleeves will re- quire 4¾ yards. The tunic alone without sleeves requires 1½ yard.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kings- ston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Fashion Book Notice.

Send 15c in coin or stamps to The Freeman for our up-to-date spring and summer 1925 Book of Fashions, showing color plates, and containing 500 designs of ladies', misses' and children's patterns, a concise and comprehensive article on dressmak- ing, also some points for the needle (illustrating 30 of the various, sim- ple stitches), all valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

BRIDE OF THREE DAYS KILLED IN COLLISION.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 18.—Mrs. Eunice Lenahan, 24, a bride of three days, was killed and seven other persons injured, when two automobiles col- lided in Central Park today.

Ernest Eckhardt, 20, driver of the car in which Mrs. Lenahan was rid- ing, and Solomon Levy, 23, driver of the other automobile, were arrested and charged with technical homi- cide.

Eckhardt was returning from a dance with several friends when the accident happened. His right arm was fractured. Levy sustained con- tusions and bruises.

The Cigarette Didn't Fall.

A cigarette doesn't weigh very much. Stand it up on end and the slightest jar will upset it. So when officials of the Hupp Motor Car Cor- poration were looking for a suitable object to test the smoothness of the Hupmobile Eight engine they se- lected a cigarette and placed it on the fender of a new Eight touring car. The engine was then started and run at varying speeds from idling to wide open throttle—the equivalent of 70 miles an hour. The cigarette did not fall.

Seems Reasonable

Since people read newspapers every day, and

People read newspaper advertising every day, and

People buy merchandise every day,

Why isn't it good business to advertise every day?

Or, at least, to advertise frequently and persistently?

If every day is a good day to try to sell goods, then

All days are goods days to advertise your store—your service—your merchandise.

BLADES OF GRASS

"Oh, we're so excited," said the little blades of grass on the lawns.

"Oh, we're so excited," said the little blades of grass on the hillsides.

"They're so excited," said the King of the Clouds to the Army of Raindrops. "They're waiting for you to help them with their costumes. You're like a firm of tailors and dressmakers to the Grass family.

"So don't forget any of them. You don't have to work after them all at once, but before you finish your springtime work, be sure they're all looked after."

The Army of Raindrops smiled, glistening, sparkling little smiles, and they all said:

"We won't forget."

"Every one of us must have a beautiful green costume," said the little blades of grass on the lawns.

"Every one of us must have a beautiful green costume," said the little blades of grass on the hillsides.

"Everyone of them must have a beautiful green costume," said the King of the Clouds to the Army of Raindrops, and you must see that they have it."

"We will see," said the Army of Raindrops.

"We will be refreshed and then our costumes will look so new and lovely," said the little blades of grass on the lawns.

"We will be so refreshed and then our costumes will look so new and lovely," said the little blades of grass on the hillsides.

"They will be so refreshed and their costumes will look so new and lovely," said the King of the Clouds to the Army of Raindrops, "and you must each and all do your parts."

"They will be so refreshed and their costumes look so new and lovely, and we will each and all do our parts to make them look so," the Army of Raindrops said.

"We will want to grow with the help of the warm sunshine and the soft springtime breezes," said the little blades of grass on the lawns.

"We will want to grow with the help of the warm sunshine and the soft springtime breezes," said the little blades of grass on the hillsides.

springtime breezes," said Mr. Sun, "and you, my little Rays, must help them."

"We will help them," said the little Rays. "Indeed we will help."

"So will we help," said the Breeze Brothers.

And the lovely refreshing rains, the gay and encouraging showers, the soft breezes, the beautiful warm sunshine made the grass so green, so soft, so pretty, so springlike.

It made everyone feel better just to look at the lovely green grass.

Every little blade was wearing a lovely fresh green suit.

None of them wanted to wear any other color, nor did they want touches of any other color.

"Just suppose," said one of the little blades of grass, "that one of us wanted a suit trimmed with blue buttons and another with red buttons and a third with yellow lace, how different it would be.

"We let flowers nestle in amongst us on the hillsides and the dandelions come to us in their bright yellow costumes and then blow their fluffy selves away, but we all dress alike and it is so much better.

"The grass wouldn't be so pretty and so restful if it were of different colors.

"It is so much better for us all to dress just alike in lovely, cool green costumes."

"Hurry," said Mistress Springtime, "the blades of grass are ready to look their best and we must all help them."

"Hurry," said the King of the Clouds, and the Army of Raindrops.

"Hurry," said Mr. Sun, and the Rays, and the Breeze Brothers.

"Oh, see how quickly the grass has become green," said the people all about, and the blades of grass waved a little in the soft breeze and whispered to each other:

"How nice it is to dress up once in a while."

What Teacher Would Be

"What is a shepherdy" asked the teacher of the small pupils in the juvenile class.

The class failed to respond.

"Well," continued the teacher, "suppose you were all lambs—that is, little sheep—what would I be?"

"A big sheep," replied the boy at the foot of the class.

SUSTAINING FOOD

Fletcher tells us that half the ills flesh is heir to are caused by improper mastication of food and the overindulgence in rich foods.

Statistics recently published on cancer state that the large proportion of sufferers from this dread disease are among the rich and well nourished. Even ten pounds of overweight is a menace to health. A decrease of a pound or two a week is a most simple matter. Cut down on the fats and sweets. Eat everything you like but stop eating after a reasonable amount has been taken.

Again, Fletcher says, if we cut down our food, one-third, we would be well nourished, live longer and feel better. It is such an important habit to form early, the one of well masticating the food. Begin with the two-year-old and the problem will be settled forever for that child.

Plenty of roughage, greens, bran, vegetables with a good deal of cellulose or woody fiber is needed to keep the bodily functions active. Fresh onions and lettuce should be a daily diet in any growing family; lettuce is rich in vitamins that promote growth.

Grated carrots added to any fresh lettuce salad, or served with a few chopped nuts and a bit of finely cut apple and a good dressing is a good one to serve often, especially when cooked carrots are refused.

A slice or two of crisp well-cooked bacon, a half-inch slice of toast, buttered with a generous amount of butter, an egg and a cup coffee with a tablespoonful of the cream, will make a good breakfast lowly masticated. A doughnut be added for the thin person but is not necessary.

Going without a meal seems to be a good method for some people, but it is not wise to cut down on the food too rapidly at first, let the body adjust itself gradually to the change. In a few weeks the normal weight will be reached.

Add a teaspoonful of peanut butter to French dressing, smoothing it into the oil before adding the lemon juice or vinegar; it adds greatly to the flavor, if one likes peanuts.

ANNIVERSARIES.

George H. Lewis, philosopher-author, born this date, 1817.—Paul Revere made the famous ride, immortalized by Longfellow, in 1775.—General Scott's force of 8,500 men routed 12,000 Mexicans strongly entrenched, in the battle of Cerro Gordo, 78 years ago today.—First newspaper in Upper Canada, published at Newark, in 1793.—Earthquake and fire destroyed a large part of San Francisco, 1906.—Harper's Ferry seized by the Confederates in 1861.

GARY.

The City of Gary, Indiana, one of the wonders of America—the city built to order—of the "steel trust" was founded 19 years ago today. Its population at the last census was over 55,000, this is a permanent industrial population, and not the transient and fluctuating one that, during the World War was many times that figure. There is little doubt that by the next census the city will step into the 100,000 class.

The site of the city was worth practically nothing until the United States Steel Corporation selected it on which to build big steel mills. Gary is practically a suburb of the Windy City today, and steel can be produced there more cheaply than in Pittsburgh.

This economic condition explains Gary's magic growth in 19 years, from nothing to one of the great steel centers of the world, a thriving city with paved streets, electric railways, busy commercial buildings, to say nothing of the big mills and factories, and its busy waterfront—also the famous schools where the famous "Gary Plan" had its first try-out.

FAUSTINA.

Flavia Maximiana Faustina was the second wife of Constantine the Great. She was the daughter of Maximian Hercules, and sister to Maxentius. Her father having received the title of Augustus, in 306, took her into Gaul, where he gave her in marriage to the Emperor Constantine.

She was for a long time a most exemplary wife and mother, and a most strenuous advocate with the Emperor for all acts of indulgence and liberality to the people. She even sacrificed her father's life to her husband by discovering to Constantine a plot for his destruction. She has been accused of staining the last years of her life by the commission of many crimes, among others that of causing the death of Crispus, the son of Constantine by a former wife, by false accusations, and, it is said, that the Emperor avenged his honor and his son's death, by causing her to be suffocated in a warm bath, in the year 327.

Modern historians, however, have seriously questioned the truth of these later statements.

Strange Accompaniment

William Collins, English poet, in fits of melancholic insanity, used to haunt the cloisters of Chichester cathedral, England, and would utter weird and unearthly howls whenever the organ was played at services.

Flour From Wheat

The amount of flour obtained from wheat depends very much on the size and weight of the kernels and varies from 65 to 80 per cent. A fair average is 4.7 bushels of wheat to one barrel of flour, weighing 196 pounds, or one bushel of wheat to 41 pounds of flour. The shorts or middlings average 11 to 12 per cent of the wheat, and the bran 13 per cent.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 18.—Motor stocks continued their spectacular upward movement in the short session of the stock market today. Shorts in Maxwell B were badly squeezed when the price of that stock was pushed by the bulls to above 89. There was a near-panic as the bears rushed in to cover short sales made when the reorganization plan was announced and when the stock was selling 25 points lower. Mack Trucks climbed sensationally and reached a new high at 152¾, completing a gain of more than 30 points on the present move.

While other active motor stocks were fairly active, there was not sufficient demand for them to push them to higher price levels. Motor accessories, including Fisk Rubber, United States Rubber, Stromberg Carburetor moved upward a point or more.

Industrial stocks were strong and active and even the oil stocks threw off the reactionary tone which held them back in the last few days. Cast Iron Pipe at 159 showed a gain of seven points from yesterday's low. Motor stocks continued to lead the advance, and the market closed stronger and active. Maxwell B at 89⅞ was up 3½ and Maxwell A gained 3 at 108¾. Heavy buying of General Motors sent that stock to 75¼, completing a gain of about seven points since the last break in the market.

United States Steel pushed through 118, and higher prices on the movement were scored by Baldwin, General Electric, etc. The oil stocks continued to improve. Marland reaching 36, up one point and mid-continent 27¼.

American and French government bonds reached the highest price levels on the movement in the listed bond market. Industrial and railroad bonds were active, with slight changes in prices.

French government 8 per cent sold up to 101½ against 99¼ earlier in the week.

Further contractions in many lines of industry was reported by the principal trade agencies, which also noted a continued decline in commodity prices. This is most noticeable in the metals markets, where copper, zinc and lead have declined to the lowest price level for the year to date.

Today's session was the most active Saturdays' session in a month or more. Transactions in the first hour aggregated 429,000 shares. Speculative sentiment was improved by the apparent regaining of confidence in the French crisis and the intimation that the new finance minister would give serious consideration to the American war debt.

Appoint Sisson To Census Job

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., April 18.—Herbert S. Sisson of Collins, N. Y., former head of the state highway department, today was appointed deputy chief supervisor of the 1925 census by Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, secretary of state. The post pays $5,000 a year.

Mrs. Charlotte Farrar of New York, was appointed general office organizer.

Vincent R. Delnost of New York, was appointed secretary to Lafayette B. Gleason of New York, chief supervisor of the census.

GAMES SUSPENDED AS TRIBUTE TO EBBETTS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 18.—In respect for the memory of Charles H. Ebbetts no baseball games will be played in the National League on Tuesday when the funeral of the Brooklyn club's president will be held, it was announced today by John A. Heydler, league president. He added that the seven surviving club presidents would officiate as honorary pall bearers and that flags would fly at half mast at all the ball parks for a period of thirty days.

"Mr. Ebbetts's death is a personal and economic loss to me as it is to all baseball," President Heydler declared. "Senior member of the organization in point of service, he set the rest of us an example by his sportsmanship and fairness. He stood for absolute integrity in his dealings with brother magnates and promoted a spirit of amity between the two major leagues by his ability to see the other fellow's side of the story."

"The interests of the minor leagues were also championed by Mr. Ebbetts, who supported the umpires at all times even at his own expense.

"Such a man is not easily replaced, and I, for one, feel that his loss is a permanent one."

SHOT IN ATTEMPT TO PREVENT WIFE'S ELOPEMENT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Sodus, N. Y., April 18—Shot in the back while trying to prevent his wife's elopement with another man, Jacob Kukelaer, 26, was in a serious condition in a hospital here today while Stephen Petix, 30, of Rochester, was under arrest on a charge of assault.

Petix and Kukelaer's wife, Edith, 23, fled to Rochester following the shooting, according to Wayne county authorities, and Petix was arrested a few hours later. The young wife and her five year old daughter, whom she had taken with her, had disappeared.

HOSTILE CAMPS RESULTS IN SALE OF SHIPS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 18.—Separate affidavits opposing the majority shipping board's sale of the five big president liners to the Dollar steamship interests were filed in district Supreme court today by Commissioner E. C. Plummer of Maine, and Frederick I. Thompson of Alabama, minority members who opposed the deal.

The filing of these separate affidavits emphasized the bitter difference that have split the board into two hostile camps on the ship sale.

Los Angeles Not Sailing.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Lakehurst, N. J., April 18.—The dirigible Los Angeles will not sail for Bermuda today, as planned. It was decided this morning that weather conditions were unfavorable. If conditions improve, however, the hop off will be made tomorrow about five a. m. It will be the Los Angeles's second flight to Bermuda. The first was entirely successful.

FAMOUS FORTS IN U. S. HISTORY

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

"Remember the Alamo!"

What Boonesborough is to Kentucky, the Alamo is to Texas, and both are more than the most famous forts in their respective states. They are monuments to the memory of two great American - frontier heroes—Daniel Boone and Davy Crockett—they are national shrines.

The Mission of San Antonio de Valero, commonly called the Mission del Alamo (Alamo being the Spanish word for cottonwood tree) was founded by the Franciscans in 1703 and after various removals was established in its present location in 1722. Soon after the outbreak of the Texan War of Independence in 1835 the Alamo was seized by the Texans.

Its commander early the next year was Lieut. Col. William Barrett Travis, a young Carolina lawyer. Associated with him was Col. James Bowie of Georgia and of Bowie knife fame. They had only about 140 men but in February there came a welcome reinforcement in the person of Davy Crockett, accompanied by some of his neighbors from Tennessee.

On February 23, 1836, Santa Ana, the dictator of Mexico, appeared before the fort and demanded its surrender. Travis answered with a shot from his cannon and a defiant hoisting of his flag. The Mexican leader had more than 4,000 men but he did not care to risk an assault so erected batteries and opened fire

For eleven days the siege was continued with heavy losses for the Mexicans but without a single casualty among the defenders. In the meantime Travis' appeals for help brought to the Alamo Col. James Butler Bonham, who slipped through the lines of the besiegers, and a detachment of 32 men, led by Capt. J. W. Smith, which cut its way through.

Finally on March 6 Santa Ana ordered a grand assault by a picked force of 2,500 men. Two attacks were beaten back by the desperate Texans but the garrison, weakened by the long vigil and lack of food, could not hurl back the third attempt. The Mexicans swarmed over the walls and for the next few minutes there followed one of the most desperate hand-to-hand encounters ever fought on the American continent. When it ended only five of the 180 defenders were left alive and they were wounded, helpless prisoners. By command of Santa Ana they were killed at once.

But the sacrifice of Davy Crockett and his fellow heroes was not in vain, for the battle cry which swept the field at the decisive battle of San Jacinto, was "Remember the Alamo!" On a monument in the state capitol at Austin commemorating their deeds is this line: "Thermopylae had its messenger of defeat. The Alamo had none."

Model Chapel Cars

One of the latest contributions, and not the least interesting, to the Vatican missionary exposition, held in connection with the Anno Santo, consists of models of "chapel cars" operated in America by the Catholic Church Extension Society. The contribution is made in the name of the society by Edward F. Carry of the Pullman company. It reproduces in miniature, but in the most exact details, the traveling chapels, whereby the society brings the ministrations of the church to residents of distant sections that cannot maintain permanent church buildings. Three such cars are in operation on American railroads.

His Decision

"Say, what the dickens is all that yelling about, out back of the smokehouse?" demanded Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, aroused from his doze on the porch.

"Maw was making soft soap and got her dress afire," replied Benty, one of Johnson's offspring. "She's rolling on the ground now, trying to put it out, and the children are watching her and hollering about it."

"Aw, well, if I want any dinner I reckon I'd better go and help her."—Kansas City Star.

You'd Never Know the Ruts and Holes Were There

THE roads haven't changed. But you're not conscious of their roughness when you ride in the New Paige or the New Jewett. Step right along. Never mind those bumps. All you feel is a slow, gentle motion as you cross them.

The reason for this restful, new riding comfort? Easily understood. First—balloon tires. But that alone isn't enough. A brand new type of spring suspension gives you the full benefit of balloon tires.

Next—springs are unusually long—Paige's more than five feet—Jewett's nearly half its wheelbase! And husky weight—to hold the road. That's the answer.

And even with the added road friction of balloon tires you steer with effortless touch-control. Special gearing and ball-bearing steering spindles account for that.

And there's giant strength in these two cars. And the beauty of the costliest cars.

And such limitless power! From big, superbly balanced, moderate-speed six-cylinder motors that are never even taxed—so they last longer.

Take the wheel of a New Paige or Jewett. These marvelous cars will tell their own story. Call or telephone us today. (548-B)

Baby Day at City Hospital

Tuesday, May 12, Fixed for Holding Birthday Day Party of Babies Born at Hospital—It Will Also be "Open House Day" for Residents of City.

One hundred and fifty babies and their proud parents will take possession of the Kingston City Hospital on Tuesday afternoon, May 12, when it will be "Baby Day" at that institution for all of the babies born there within the past year and a half. The arrangements for the baby party are in the hands of the Ladies' Auxiliary and no efforts will be spared to make the event a success. Each tot will receive a present and refreshments will be served.

Just what the refreshments will consist of is not made public but owing to the youth of the guests of honor the menu will have to be limited to those articles of food that children of that age are allowed to indulge in.

It has also been decided to hold "open house" in conjunction with the baby party and every resident of the city will be given the opportunity of visiting and inspecting the hospital and the two new additions to the building.

Dempsey to Meet Rickard's Terms

Showdown is Expected Next Week In New York When Dempsey Arrives—Kearns May Be In The Background.

(By Davis J. Walsh.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 18.—Reassured by Jack Dempsey's signed statement from Los Angeles, denying a contemplated break in his relations with Jack Kearns, the champion's man of business, Tex Rickard began laying active plans today for a Dempsey meeting hereabouts this summer. Rickard has Tom Gibbons in mind as the party of the second part but is prepared to shift his attention to Harry Wills in the event that the New York State Athletic Commission adheres to the defi of Wills.

The enterprise, if satisfactorily concluded, will be Rickard's one and only big shot of the outdoor season.

Those close to the promoter declare that he has allowed others to step in and grab Gibbons and Tunney, Wills and Weinert and other matches of comparative prominence because he is concentrating on a heavyweight championship bout and none other. Rickard, they say, will be very active next week when Dempsey arrives in New York en route upon a honeymoon tour of Europe.

There will be a showdown before the champion sails and many believe that Rickard and Dempsey will reach a thorough understanding on the immediate future. The general idea here is that Kearns may be in the background during the negotiations, Dempsey being a strong Rickard man while Kearns has given indications of shifting his allegiance elsewhere. This difference of opinion on Rickard, it is said, has been more than a minor factor in the strained relations believed to have existed between the champion and his manager.

It is believed to be one of the reasons Kearns did nothing about the commission's ultimatum on Wills while here some weeks ago. He knew Dempsey wanted Rickard and he himself desired to do business elsewhere.

Charles L. Henderson, in the throes of building a mammoth bowl at Long Island City, is understood to be Kearns's choice of promoter. Henderson is said to have made Kearns an offer that no sane man would refuse. It is not in actual dollars but in terms of successive percentages that would net Dempsey and Kearns close to $800,000 for a Wills match. Henderson is not interested in Gibbons for championship purposes.

Much as he wished to accept before Henderson changed his mind Kearns was forced to side step as gracefully as possible until such time as Dempsey had had a heart to heart talk with Rickard and given the latter every opportunity to get in a bid.

This opportunity, it is declared, will knock gently but firmly on Rickard's door next week.

Spice Bush in Spring

The little yellow flowers in tiny clusters on some of the bushes in the swamps and along the streams with the alders is spice bush, and by snapping a twig to smell or taste you can be sure, says Nature Magazine. The medicinelike odor and flavor are unlike that of any other plant.

Tagging Major League Bases

The lioness only has one cub, but it is a lion. Joe Judge only got two hits but one of them was a homer off Shawkey with the bases filled, and the Senators made it three out of four by beating the Yankees 6 to 1.

Continuing their shelling of enemy sharpshooters, the Cubs again beat the Pirates, 9 to 6, home runs by Statz and Hartnett, the latter's fourth in three days, being the deciding factor.

"After you, my dear Gaston," said Joe Shaute of Cleveland, but forgot his manners and stepped in front of the St. Louis pitcher to a 1 to 0 decision in the best pitched game of the season to date.

Blankenship and Lyons had nothing but an empty sleeve and the Tigers socked their way to a 9 to 3 victory over the White Sox.

Wayland Dean enjoyed one of those personal triumphs at Boston. He not only shut the Braves right out, 2 to 0, but drove in the first run with a single.

The rampant Reds finally were brought up short by the Cardinals, 8 to 6, when two hits and an error staked the Rickey outfit to a pair of runs in the eleventh.

Groves, making his second start of the season, again was wilder than a week's growth and the Red Sox finally beat the Athletics, 4 to 3, in a game curtailed by rain.

YMCA Bowling Alley Records

The Y. M. C. A. bowling alleys closed for the summer season Wednesday, April 15th. The year passed was one of the most successful in the history of the alleys. Over 12,000 games were bowled during the season which was nearly 3,500 in excess of the previous season.

Three successful bowling leagues (two mercantile and one church) completed their schedules during March. The mercantile league being won by the K. G. and E. team and the church league by the St. James M. E. Church. The trophies won by these teams are on display in the window of the sporting goods store on Fair street.

Competition for the individual records and prizes has been exceptionally keen. Records being broken almost daily throughout the season. The final scores and prizes are as follows:

High average score for season, (50 games or better)—Fred Rice, 515 games. Total pinnage, 87,104. Average per game, 169.1 pins. Wins large gold medal.

High Alley Score for Season—*Fred Rice, 247 pins. S. Bedford, 245 pins, wins miniature gold bowling ball.

Highest Three Games—*Fred Rice, 597 pins. J. Hallenbeck, 582 pins, wins miniature gold bowling ball.

Highest Team Score—Lace Mills, 577 pins. Members, S. Bedford, E. Alward, M. Wendland. All win miniature silver bowling ball.

DE MAR FAVORED TO WIN BOSTON MARATHON.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Boston, Mass., April 18.—One hundred and twenty Marathon runners of all nationalities and from all parts of the country, were marking time today, awaiting the annual Boston Athletic Association Marathon race to be held next Monday, a twenty-five mile grind from Hopkinton to Boston.

Clarence De Mar, Marathon veteran, four times winner of the classic, three of which came in a row, was the center of attraction as the time drew near for the running of the race. He is once again favored to win the event despite the fact that some of the best distances runners in the country have sent in their entrance notice.

More than 250,000 spectators are expected to be gathered along the route of the long grind on Patriots Day.

Volley Ball Night Monday

The following information regarding volley ball night to be held at the Y. M. C. A. Monday, April 20, is submitted by the committee in charge.

Games start promptly at 5 o'clock and will be played in the order drawn as soon as the previous sets are played.

Teams not ready to play when their games are called will forfeit to their opponents. Due to the large number taking part it will be impossible to wait even a minute for a team.

Captains will be responsible for their team and for making the necessary arrangements to play.

All men assigned to teams must play.

A team may compete with only part of their men on the floor.

The first round will consist of the bets two out of three 11 point games. The losers will go into a consulation round to be played later (see arrangement for games after the first round on diagram in gym). All other rounds will be one game of 15 points. After a team loses twice it is out of the tournament.

Games in the first round are as follows:

Yale vs. Army.
Columbia vs. Harvard.
Princeton vs. Penn State.
Navy vs. Cornell.
College of Rest vs. Vassar.

All games must be played off before the banquet. The committee asks the cooperation of every captain in lining up his team. Have men in suits and ready to play for forfeited games may cause the team to be called earlier than you expect.

Teams.

Yale—R. L. Marchant, captain; Walter DeGraff, Mr. Cornelsky, Ernest Hicks, W. Slawson, Julius Gifford.

Facts For Farmers

How much an hour do you pay your help?

How much is your own time worth?

Every hour spent in carrying water is wasted! Pumping water is not a business-farmer's chore. Today, machines do the chores. And that's what this Kingstonian Farm Water System is—a finely designed machine which you can buy at a reasonable price and which can be counted on to supply running water when and where you need it, with little or no attention from you.

WAS JESUS GOD?

millions now living will never die

Ecclesiastical leaders of Christendom are hopelessly divided.

They preach God the stern, unrelenting one, Jesus as merciful and kind, but still contend that both are one in person.

Jesus said that He came to do His Father's will—to reconcile the world to God through Himself. His death as a man to provide the ransom price for Adam and his offspring is comprehensible, but the doctrine of Jesus as incarnate God is confusing and unscriptural

On the work of "the man Christ Jesus" rests Jehovah's plan for liberty, happiness and everlasting life for the human family.

Colonials in Opening Games

The Colonial baseball team paraded through the street this afternoon before opening the baseball season at the Kingston Fair grounds.

The D. & H. Generals will be the attraction at the opening game, which starts this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. On Sunday afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock, the same teams will again clash at the Fair Grounds.

Society Notes

This evening at 6 o'clock the wedding of Miss Frances A. Geroldsek and Kenneth H. Wood will occur at the home of the bride, No. 177 Pearl street.

The nurses of the Kingston City Hospital and their friends held a most enjoyable dance at the K. of C. Hall on Friday evening. The music for dancing was furnished by Zucca's orchestra.

On Wednesday evening a very pleasant birthday party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Diehl, 153 Hunter street, when the birthday of Henry Diehl, Jr., was celebrated. The following guests enjoyed dancing, card playing and singing, with refreshments served: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Diehl and sons, William, Henry, George, Woodrow, and Arthur, Louise Moore, Mrs Wilson, John Slate, Joseph Huber, Clarence Uhl, Virgil Kelly, Elsie Berger, Alma Berger, Bertha Burger, Simon Stokes, Lena Burger, Mary Ennist, Ada Brown. The party broke up about midnight, and every one had a delightful evening. Virgil Kelly and Louise Moore did the best fancy dancing of the evening and received a handsome souvenir of the occasion.

ARE NOT AGREED ON ORIGIN OF HOOSIER

Some Opinions Put Forward Not Complimentary.

What the term "Hoosier" means, and the origin of it, is a question that persists through the years. More than ninety years ago it was discussed in the newspapers, and though the reasonable and probable answer was then indicated, which the Indiana Democrat of October 26, 1833, copied from the Cincinnati Republican, an improbable explanation that chanced to get a footing is nearly always given in answer. It is that the nickname rose from what was said to be the habit of Indiana pioneers of hailing a cabin with the call "Who's yere?" No authentic pioneer chronicles tell of any such expression.

A common hail was: "Hello the house!" in Indiana and elsewhere. More worthy of credence is the notion of James Whitcomb Riley, who maintained that Hoosier evolved from the characteristic scrappiness of the pioneers who in settling their differences bit off each other's features. When, after one of these pleasantries, a belated citizen arrived on the scene and saw a detached ear lying on the ground he naturally asked: "Who's ear?" Other stories than these derived the word from huzzar, huzza and husher. None of them merits serious consideration. Another story not quite so unlikely is that when the canal was being dug a contractor by the name of Hoosier employed workmen from the Indiana side of the river. These became known as Hoosier's men, and as there were a great many of them, the use of the name spread until it became associated with Indianians generally.

The discussion of 1833, referred to above as quoted from the Cincinnati Republican, had this to say: "The word Hoosier is indebted for its existence to that once numerous but now extinct class of mortals called the Ohio boatmen. In its original acceptation it was equivalent to 'Ripstaver,' 'Scrouger,' 'Screamer,' 'Bulger,' 'Ringtail roarer,' and a hundred others. . . . By some caprice the appellation became confined solely to such boatmen as had their homes upon the Indiana shore, and from them it was gradually applied to all the Indianians."

The writer of this perhaps did not know that the word was not confined to the boatmen on the river, but extended southward and was probably common then, as it certainly was later in the more primitive sections, especially in the mountain districts. Today one may find the word Hoosier there as an expression of contempt for an uncouth and unkempt person. That it made its way northward as part of the southern vocabulary along with the tide of immigration from the South hardly admits of a doubt, and that it attached to the typical early Indianian is an uncomplimentary probability. As the cultural status of the people changed the word gradually lost its earlier implications but retained its place. The first appearance of the word in print, as far as known, is in the Indiana Palladium for July 30, 1831, which, describing Noah Noble as a horse in the political race, says: "He may be called a 'Hoosher.'"—Indianapolis News.

His Reason

"I'm figgering on moving away," said Lafe Lazyenberry of Boogie Holler. "I aim to load the folks into the waggin, pour a gourdful of water on the fire, call the dogs and light out for Oklahomy."

"What do you want to go to Oklahomy for special?" asked an acquaintance.

"Well, I'll just tell you: I've used up all the credit I had yourabouts and borried till I can't borry nuth'n' more, and over there I don't know nobody and nobody don't know me, so I aim to start all over ag'in."—Kansas City Star.

Knew the Owner

There was nothing the professor disliked so much as to see the ignorant public get false information—especially on the subject of ornithology. So when he observed that an incorrect scientific name had been attached to a cage of birds at the park zoo, he summoned the attendant.

"Don't you know that these birds do not belong to the family Paradiedae?" he asked.

"Sure, I do," replied the attendant. "The zoo bought 'em last week."

Baby Elephant as Pet

Wanting to give a more substantial wedding present than furniture or cut glass, Bernard Ruhe of Newark, N. J., gave his daughter, Elsie, when she was married to Carl Strohm, a baby elephant. He told his daughter, as she sailed for a honeymoon trip to Europe, that the animal, besides being a pet, is a good investment, for it could always be sold for more than it cost; and as the elephant lives for several hundred years it will be in the family for some generations.

For Blond Heads

A pink hat for a blond head has been a safe rule to follow for years. A famous milliner has followed it in designing a large capeline hat of crin with a wide, downturned brim of a rose cyclamen tint. The brim is trimmed with ribbon of the same hue and a great chou of this ribbon is posed at one side of the crown.

DIED.

DARROW—In this city, April 17, 1925, Isabel James, daughter of Henry D. and Sheila McGiffert Darrow, of 153 Pearl street. Funeral and interment private. Kindly omit flowers.

PARSELL—At Port Ewen, N. Y., Saturday, April 18, 1925, David Parsell. Funeral and interment private.

Boy Stepped In Front of Car

car did not swerve. "If he had he could have avoided him," said Mrs. Parnett.

They had lowered the carriage off the concrete when the boy ran across the road. They were in the act of crossing the road. She did not see the car hit the boy. She heard no shout of warning to the boy.

Deputy Sheriff Seth Jocelyn was called. He testified that he received a call and went to the city hall and over to the hospital where he received some facts and then returned to the city hall where he talked with the chief of police and then went with Frank Filsinger in his car to the scene of the accident. He went to the bridge about 5:40 o'clock. He saw blood on the pavement, it was pointed out by Frank Filsinger. From the spot of blood to the bridge it was 74 feet. The spot of blood was about a foot or a foot and a half from the right of the road going south. The blood spot was about midway between the bridge and the South Rondout road.

Marks of baby carriage tracks were observed on the left of the road going south. They were 14 feet from the end of the concrete part of the bridge out on the roadway. It was 60 feet from the blood marks to the carriage tracks. There were no marks visible made by the Filsinger car.

He said there was no obstruction to prevent seeing across the bridge. He talked to Filsinger. He said he was driving. In the car were Mrs. Charles Heisinger, Evelyn and Herbert Filsinger. He said he had not taken any license number as that had been secured in a report made to the chief of police. Filsinger said the car was owned by Mrs. Alice Filsinger, it was a seven passenger Buick touring car.

Mr. Jocelyn said that Frank said he was driving the car across the bridge when the boy suddenly stepped in front of the car and he hit him. They were on their way to Port Ewen where they had a summer home. Later Mr. Jocelyn said he asked Filsinger if he stopepd the car and Filsinger said he had "as soon as I could." He said he was driving 25 miles an hour. He said he had stopped the car where he turned around at the junction of the South Rondout road.

Mrs. Heisinger told Mr. Jocelyn that she had looked out of the rear window of the car and saw the boy and said to Filsinger, "I guess you have hit him." Filsinger said the boy came out about 15 feet in front of the car, he applied the brakes. He told Mr. Jocelyn that he saw the women on the left hand side of the road. He saw them and blew his horn and continued on. The accident happened between 4.15 and 4:30. There were no marks on the road made by the car. There were no marks of the wheels sliding.

Someone told Mr. Jocelyn that they had turned the car around and intended to pick up the boy but someone was already there and picked up the boy and took him away.

Martin J. Brogan, inspector at the bridge, was called. He said he was at work on the bridge on the Kingston side that day. He gave detailed measurements of the bridge. The passageway for vehicles is 18 feet wide at the Port Ewen side. The roadway just off the bridge at the end of the bridge is also 18 feet. He said there was a five per cent grade from Kingston toward the center of the bridge and from the center to the Port Ewen side there is an up grade of one-fifteenth of one per cent. The water from the Port Ewen side flows toward Kingston. He saw the Filsinger car stop for traffic at the entrance of the bridge and as the car passed him someone in the rear-seat waved to him. He did not know who it was. He knew the Filsingers by sight since last summer but did not know them by name. The car came up Abeel street from Broadway and turned on the bridge. He could not see who was driving. Later he saw the Buick come in the rear of the Ford car in which the boy was taken to the hospital.

Later he was at the city hall and saw one of the women. She said the car had hit the boy. He had stepped out in front of the car and they tried to avoid him but could not.

Pames Flynn, boatman, who lives at Port Ewen, was called. It was his car which conveyed the boy to the hospital. About 4.35 he was coming down the hill toward Kingston. With him was Frank Duffy. They saw someone on the roadway and stopped. Before the car had stopped Duffy jumped oft and picked up the child. He held him in the rear seat on the way to the hospital. One of the women went along. It was the boy's mother.

The boy lay near the middle of the road near the South Rondout road about 50 feet from the bridge. When they approached the boy he saw a Buick car standing at the side of the road on the right headed toward Kingston. A man was standing near the front door. He pulled his car to the left of the Buick and picked up the boy and started for the hospital. No one was near the boy when he stopped his car. There were women in the vicinity and one of them went to the hospital. Grover Walker, a taxi driver who was following Flynn, talked to him of the accident later in Kingston. He had not talked to the Filsingers and did not know them.

The boy he thought was about six or seven feet from the left of the edge of the macadam as you come from Kingston. The Buick car was turned around and was headed toward Kingston and was about opposite the boy. The body was some 10 or 15 feet up the road from the pool of blood. Where the body lay there was a spot which was hardly noticeable.

Frank Duffy of Port Ewen said he saw the boy on the road as they approached and jumped from the car before it had stopped. The boy was lying face up. He picked him up. He did not see any blood on the road. There was blood on his face. He held the boy on the way to the hospital. The mother was in the front seat with Flynn.

The Buick car was on the right hand side of the road headed toward Kingston with its two right hand wheels off the macadam. The car was about opposite the child. He saw a man standing at the front door of the Buick. He could not recognize the man. The boy's head was toward Port Ewen and the feet were about two feet from the macadam.

The occupants of the Buick were called but none was present except the driver. He was not called. Trooper Coons who was at the scene of the accident was also absent and in order to allow further testimony an adjournment was taken at this point.

FREE RADIO

Here's a real opportunity! One that may bring to you all the pleasure that comes to those who "listen in" on a radio.

You have the opportunity of possessing a Cleartone Radio Receiving Set! The cabinet is of solid mahogany—a beautiful piece of furniture. The selectivity of this set is remarkable, and distant stations can be distinctly heard on a loud speaker with plenty of volume.

The details of how you may become the owner of this Radio Set can be secured at our store on Tuesday, April 21st. And at the same time you will have the opportunity to witness a very interesting demonstration of Lowe Brothers Paints and Varnishes.

SEE OUR WINDOWS

DEMONSTRATION
Paints—Lowe Brothers—Varnishes
Tuesday, April 21st

Do you know that a wall finished with Lowe Brothers Mello-Gloss, a liquid oil paint, can be washed—even free of grease—with surprising ease? Visit our demonstration—we'll show you how easily it is done.

At our demonstration, you will see Neptunite Varnish subjected to severe abuse and, yet, never turn white. We'll even iron a wet towel until dry on a varnished surface to show the wear-resistance of Neptunite Varnish.

Let us show you with one sweep of the brush you can stain and varnish your furniture, woodwork or floors with Lowe Brothers Varnish Stain.

Painting Advice

A representative of The Lowe Brothers Company will be with us to offer painting advice, in addition to making practical demonstrations of Lowe Brothers Paints and Varnishes. His expert knowledge of painting problems will be at your disposal. Consult him about your work.

Decorative Service

If you have any particular work in mind, we can secure from the Decorative Department of The Lowe Brothers Company color suggestions adapted to your individual requirements. This service is free and it will be a real help in planning the decoration of your home. Ask about it.

Don't miss the demonstration and the opportunity to become the owner of this Free Radio Set
